

Its the Logica office move time again. I attempted to speak to a colleague on his first day in S H* the other Monday. I was given his number and was through half a minute later. Its not what I anticipated. I was impressed.

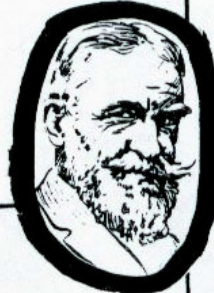

Regarding our noticeboards, forget any similar ideas. During the staff movements we are going to have one heck of a job keeping track with who is where and what noticeboard is where and when.

It is not our intention to forcibly impose a no-publicity option on any particular location, and we'll do our best to provide a service during Transition. (In fact we're bringing in a new distribution system for notices which should mean faster circulation and display - but that's a month away).

So - please bear with us during Transition - please remember everything we do (from organisation of events through to admin through to budgetting) is done in our spare time, to which there is a limit. If you can help us out, don't hesitate to get in touch.

The latest information about up-and-coming events can be obtained from activity representatives and from the Back Pages.

Thank you to the London Underground escalator advertisements for style tips in writing these paragraphs.

Armchair Treasure Hunt

CONNECTIONS

The Treasure was actually buried near the village of Ayot St. Peter (where?) in Hertfordshire ... so congratulations to Martin Milnes who got there first and to the other 10 who also made it. Forty people sent in their answers which varied between one question correct and all-but-four, they will shortly be in possession of The Secret; there was only one question - number 90 - that no-one was able to crack. Thanks to everyone who entered and joined in the chase, hope you all enjoyed the challenge ...

TREASURE HUNT TREASURE HUNT

Thankz to all who bribed their way into clues and randomly distributed gifts in the final pub, on the Treasure Hunt 12 (remember, that night out in November before Christmas started). £225 was raised.

TREASURE HUNT THIRTEEN. WHEN ? WHERE ? WHAT ?

We don't know either. What is certain is that if the fun and success are to be maintained we're not going to be able to do it just by ourselves. ARE YOU INTERESTED in a few nights beers, scheming and plotting as to how far your colleagues will go, putting in just that little (honest) bit of admin and indulging in bribery extortion coercion and mockery on the night ?

We genuinely need new people new ideas to keep things going. Get in contact with Paul Coombs or Geoff Beeson and we'll be in touch when the time is right ...
