

ARMCHAIR TREASURE HUNT 1992

Composed By: Paul Coombs

Illustrated By: Brian Jackson

Somewhere within five miles of a Logica office I have concealed a small box. Your task is to find it. Clues to its precise location can be found in the accompanying words and pictures.

There are no red herrings in this competition. Everything depicted in the pictures has some bearing on the puzzle or its solution. Note that this puzzle consists of eleven pages.

A prize of 100 pounds will be awarded to the first finder of the treasure-box. The remaining prizes will be presented for the most complete sets of solutions to the entire puzzle which I receive. You will have to decide what to include in your solution but I think it is fair to say that it would be better to include too much than too little. However, I will not give any marks for anything irrelevant to the puzzle. Not all of the puzzles have a unique solution - I will award bonus marks for imaginative answers to these. There will be some more bonus points if you find the treasure-box. For the best overall solution there is a prize of 50 pounds; 30 and 20 pound prizes will be awarded for the next best. No person/team may win more than one prize. Prizes can only be awarded to members of Logica and associated companies.

Use discretion when unearthing the treasure-box and read the instructions inside. Return the box to its original position, having consideration for later finders. If you have reached the correct spot (you'll know if you have) and the box is missing then please try to contact me.

Entries must be with me by Monday, 11 January 1993. The internal post to Speedwing is somewhat erratic, so do feel free to post solutions to my home address. Solutions will be sent only to people who have entered the competition - they will not be published in "Noticeboard". If the treasure-box has not been found by the time the answers are issued then extra clues will be given - again only to the people who have submitted a solution.

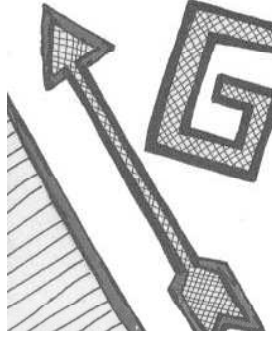

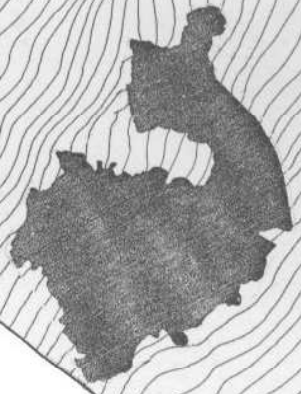

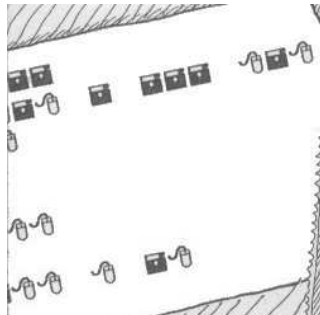

Everyone involved with the production of "Noticeboard" deserves my thanks as does Brian for the pictures, Richard Pope for the code and the Sports and Social Club for the prize-money.

Remember to include your own internal or home address with your entry. And good luck.

Muse, strike the lyre to some immortal strain,
But oh! what skill, what master hand,
Shall govern or constrain the wanton band?
Loose like my verse they dance and all without command.
