

LET'S HELP STOP THE SPREAD OF BOREDOM

Virus Alert Announcement — Hands, Face, Space

The UK Government is taking advice from Apopheniacs Anonymous in the hope that Christmas can be celebrated in the time honoured, traditional fashion — with disparate groups of people around the country, and some from further afield, united in a common purpose to solve a puzzle which is gripping the world, allowing us all to move on to the new normal.

It is anticipated that on Friday 18th December at 6pm GMT an official document will be released, promoting an extra layer of social measures to combat the spread of the virus. The three words that have governed our lives for so long — Hands, Face, Space — will be augmented by three new words — Armchair Treasure Hunt.

People are expected to respond by spending 1 to 4 weeks in isolation, or in relatively small groups — The Apopheniacs have consistently applied a rule of 7. After some time in isolation people may start to take the occasional walk to an appropriately socially distanced location.

The situation is fluid and we anticipate the possibility of additional information and updates from the Apopheniacs in response to emergent events. To ensure you receive all updates in a timely fashion please register your support bubble at pablosath.com
